Floraffiti[®] is a creative community engagement project in Chapel Hill and Carrboro. This year's project is focused on environmental justice (EJ), a movement that has widened our lens of environmental concern and activism. The adverse consequences of climate change and its environmental crises were explored in community poetry workshops addressing these social-political challenges and inequities that are exacerbated by the climate crisis. Each planted site contains a word from a poem written by a participant in the two workshops that you can listen to by scanning the QR code next to each word.
